News of Virginia

REV. R. T. WILSON DEAD.

Life Of Minister Ends In Dinwiddie County.

Petersburg (Special).— Rev. Dr. Richard T. Wilson, one of the most prominent members of the Virginia Conference of the Southern Methodist Church, died at his country home in Dinwiddie County, one mile and a half from Petersburg, after an illness of several months.

Death resulted from heart failure, although he had suffered from a swollen foot 10 months, and during the month of July he had been under treatment at St. Luke's Hospital, in Richmond.

Dr. Wilson was born in Nottoway County 69 years ago and had twice married. His first wife was Miss Hobbs, of Greensville County, and his second wife was Miss Bessie P. Garland, of Amherst County, Virginia. He was graduated from the Virginia Military Institute in 1871, and afterward, for a year or more, taught school in Little Rock, Ark. Subsequently he gave up his school and came to Wakefield, Va., where he began the practice of law. He afterward removed from Wakefield to Petersburg, where for some years he was one of the leading members of the bar and had a lucrative practice which yielded him large means.

In 1887 he felt that he had been called to the ministry and gave up the practice of law and connected with the Virginia Methodist Conference, of which at the time of his death he was a prominent member. His first pastoral charge was the Wesley Methodist Episcopal Church, this city, where he served for four years. His next charge was the Monumental Church, at Berkeley, Va., where he served for one year. He was next sent to Clay Street Church, Richmond, of which he was pastor for four years, and for three years he was pastor of Market Street Church, in Petersburg.

He was made presiding elder of the Richmond District for one year, and when the districts were divided he was made presiding elder of the Petersburg District and served for four years. He was subsequently assigned as presiding elder of the West Richmond district, and at the time of his death was serving out his fourth year of that office.

Rev. Dr. Wilson was Past Commander of Appomattox Commandery, Knights Templars, of Petersburg, and Grand Prelate of the Grand Commandery, Knights Templars, of Virginia. He was also a thirty-second degree Scotch Rite Mason of Richmond Lodge. He is survived by his widow, five daughters and three sons.

CHAMPIONS PATRICK'S CAUSE.

Osteopath Hopes To Prove Lawyer Guiltless of Bigamy.

Norfolk (Special).—At the session of the American Osteopathic Association at the Jamestown Exposition, Dr. Willis Gale, dean of the faculty of the American Osteopathic School, at Kirksville, Mo., made an address on the case of Albert T. Patrick, now in Sing Sing for the murder of Millionaire Rice in New York. Dean Gale said that he yet expects to prove through the influence of osteopathy that Patrick is innocent.

Fights for favorable legislation in twenty-one States with satisfactory results in fourteen were made by the osteopaths last year. The fight to practice in every State unmolested is on.

TWO HURT IN RUNAWAY.

Boy Will Lose A Leg And Man Is Severely Injured.

Richmond (Special).—Albert E. Deuel, proprietor of the Deuel Parcel Delivery, and Hardly Gaines, fifteen years of age, of Norfolk, were the victims of a runaway accident. As a result one of the boy's legs must be amputated, Dr. Duel thinks that his left leg fractured.

The horse was purchased by Duel several days ago, after having killed T. L. Crowder, a driver for the same Deuel, who is a cripple, was unable to stop the animal after it began to run. The animal demolished the spattenboard with his hoofs, kicking both occupants of the vehicle at once.

Bananas Growing In Virginia.

Fredericksburg (Special).—Councilman H. B. Lane, of this city, planted a banana plant in his front yard early in the season, and has given it every possible care. The plant has attained a height of 12 feet and has three blooms, and now a number of bunches of bananas have formed. If the cool weather does not set in too early, Mr. Lane will have ripe bananas of his own raising.

Boy Crushed To Death.

Fredericksburg (Special). — The body of Frank Berry, seven years old, son of Scott Berry, was found crushed under a pile of lumber. It is supposed that in playing on the lumber pile the heavy timbers rolled down upon him.

Catches Two Fish In One.

Richmond (Special).—Dr. J. F. Ragland and A. W. Benaley, of Chesterfield County, returned several days ago from a fishing trip to the Rappahannock sand islands, in the Georgian Bay. Dr. Ragland succeeded in landing a 65-pound pike. The weight of the fish continued to its size was startling to say the least. On preparing the fish for dinner a 25-pound rock bass was found inside the pike. The pike had evidently made a meal of the bass.

Twice Shot In Quarrel.

Emporia (Special).—Sergeant Thomas Brantley, of Emporia, is an alternate to Hon. Turner Chambliss, of Belfield, shot the latter twice through the Visit. The officer states he fired the two shots in self-defense. One of the balls shattered the thigh bone of Chambliss, who is now confined to his home. The wounded man is a grandson of Col. John R. Chambliss and a son of Gen. Chambliss, both of whom were heroes throughout the State before and during the civil war.

SLAIN MAN A BIGAMIST.

First Wife Of James Baldick Found Living In New York.

Norfolk (Special).—James Baldick, shot and killed at Ocean View last June by the son-in-law of the wife with whom he was then living, was a bigamist, if reports reaching here from New York are true. A special dispatch from Watertown, N. Y., says:

"James Baldick, who was shot and killed at Ocean View, in June, by George Wade, is survived by a widow and several children residing at Newyo, a farming settlement, four miles from Antwerp, Jefferson County, N. Y., the nearest railroad station, and without telephone or telegraph connection. Mrs. Baldick has not been informed of her husband's death. Rose Baldick, the eldest son, has started for Norfolk. A daughter is working in Antwerp, and another son, Harold, formerly taught school here. An effort is being made to keep Mrs. Baldick in ignorance of her husband's fate."

Mrs. Annie T. Baldick, of Norfolk wife, declared she knew nothing of Baldick's earlier marriage.

THROWN IN HORSE RACE.

William F. Randolph, Jr., May Die Of Injuries.

Berryville (Special).—William F. Randolph, Jr., formerly of Clarke, but now living with the Bank of Richmond, at Richmond, was thrown in a hurdle race at the Clarke County horse and colt show and seriously if not fatally hurt. In endeavoring to take the third hurdle, just in front of the grand stand, Randolph's mount, True Boy, blundered and he was thrown, young Randolph completely over him. Randolph struck full upon his temple and was rendered unconscious. He is in a hospital and his condition is regarded as precarious.

In the light-weight hunter class R. M. Peoples, of Upperville, riding Aristocrat, was thrown at a hurdle, his mount falling also. He escaped with a few bruises. In the qualified hunter's class Edward B. Jacobs, riding No Name, fell with his mount at the first hurdle. His horse fell upon and rolled over him, but Jacobs escaped unhurt and rode the class out.

RECLUSE LEAVES FORTUNE.

Supposed To Be Dependent On Sons, He Has Them Wealthy.

Richmond (Special).—When old Cyrus Graffin, who had lived practically the life of a recluse for years, passed away in his little room in a little house on Beverly Street several days ago, Oregon Hill lost one of its most picturesque characters. He was widely known as the landmark of the hill. In all the years that he lived in the little house the neighbors learned little of the old man. He lived alone, cooked his own meals, boughy but his two sons, Wirt Adam and Charles Graffin, who lived with him. It was the popular belief that the boys were the support of the old man in his declining years.

Oregon Hill, therefore, was considerably staggered to learn a few days ago two boys have inherited a fortune of $65,000. This fortune the quiet old man accumulated in the last half century by frugality and economy. In a small way he was a money-lender, and at infrequent intervals he would buy a real estate He had been a widower for years.

GIRL SHOOTS ALLEGED RIVAL.

Barred From Entering Victims Home Young Woman Uses Revolver.

Bristol (Special).—Rexie Ferguson, a young woman, made an desperate attempt to kill Mrs. James Ferguson, at Belfast, early Sunday morning. She fired three shots into the house, two of which struck Mrs. Ferguson, one lodging in her elbow and the other striking her in the left hip.

Rexie Ferguson was locked up. She admits having tried to kill Mrs. Ferguson, saying that it was because the latter had robbed her of the affections of James Shocraft, a young man who was in the house at the time. Mrs. Ferguson denies having received an attentions from Shocraft.

TRAINMAN IS ELECTROCUTED.

Killed Climbing On Caboose Accidentally Charged By Live Wire.

Clifton Forge (Special).—Edward Pullen, a brakeman on the James River divisions of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway, was electrocuted as he was in the act of climbing on the caboose for a trip to Gladstone. A live electric wire had fallen across the caboose and charged all the iron work of the car. Pullen took hold of the iron handrail and was instantly killed.

He was discovered by Brakeman Dakin, who gave the alarm and had the current cut off, so as to save others from a like fate. Pullen is survived by his wife and one child.

Quadruplets Born To Virginia Couple.

Hoosier (Special).—Mrs. Joshua Fount, of this county gave birth to four children. One of them lived only a few hours, but the others are well and it is believed will live. The mother weighs 130 pounds, and has been enjoying fine health. The family is a prosperous farmer. The will have their picture taken and send it to President Roosevelt in a few days. Two of the babies were boys and two girls. It was one of the latter that died. The living children weigh about four pounds each.

Robbed Of $800 While Asleep.

Rocky Mount (Special).—Claude Perdue, of Franklin County, reported that he had been drugged and robbed of $800 in paper and gold. He says he was drinking and awoke in Woodland Park, when he found his roll was missing.

The ministry of agriculture, works and commerce has granted permission to a Chinese syndicate, headed by a wealthy Chihli merchant named Sun, to develop the gold deposits of Tehpinkou, in Jeho territory.

DEATH OF JAMES G. PENN.

Millionaire Tobacconist Had Been Ill For Long Time.

Danville (Special).—James Garbrid Penn, millionaire tobacconist and capitalist, died at his home here after a long illness, in the sixty-second year of his age. He was probably more closely identified with the business interests of Danville than any other citizen. He was a large stockholder and officer in practically all of the large corporations and enterprises of this city, among them being the Riverside Cotton Mills, the Dan River Power and Manufacturing Company, the Morrotock Manufacturing Company, the Danville Storage Warehouse Company, the Danville Street Railway and Electric Company, and the Boatwright Manufacturing Company.

At the time of his death Mr. Penn was president of the Commercial Bank and a trustee of the Randolph-Macon system of colleges of Virginia. He was a generous contributor to the various charitable institutions of this city.

Mr. Penn was chairman of the building committee which built the Main Street Methodist Church here and the general hospital, and gave liberally to the support of both of these institutions as well as the Danville Orphanage. It was in the tobacco business that he first achieved business prominence, being one of the founders of the firm of Penn, Fenton & Penn, large exporters, and of the firm of R. P. Taylor & Co., which has large interests throughout North and South Carolina.

TWO RESCUED FROM FLAMES.

Richmond Firemen Carry Unconscious Men From Building.

Richmond (Special).—Unconscious and almost suffocated by dense smoke, George King and George Blake narrowly escaped death in a fire which totally destroyed the building rooms and shop of William F. Drinard, on North Sixth Street.

While there was at its height moans from an upstairs room attracted the attention of the firemen. The two men were sleeping in the second story of the building, and so rapid was the work of the flames the terrified bakers downstairs never thought of awakening them. Two firemen each gathered one of the men in his arms and made their way to a front window, where other firemen were in waiting with a ladder. The two men remained unconscious for a considerable time.

BRIDGE COLLAPSES; 84 LOST

Ten Escape and Six Expected to Die of Their Injuries--Spanned St. Lawrence River and Cost $10,000,000.

NEARLY ALL OF THE VICTIMS WERE AMERICANS.

Was In Many Respects The Most Remarkable Viaduct In The World — Phoenix Iron Works of Phoenix, Pa., Had The Contract.

Quebec, Que. (Special).—The immense new $10,000,000 steel bridge, which was in course of construction across the St. Lawrence River at Levis, two miles above the city of Quebec, collapsed, carrying down nearly 100 workmen mostly steelworkers and riverters.

Now the vast mass of steel work lies a tangled wreck across the St. Lawrence channel. A careful estimate places the loss of life at 84

The accident was so terrible in its effectiveness in wiping out the lives of the men employed that very little is known as to the cause of the disaster.

The bridge was about a mile and a half in length, and half of it, from the south shore to midstream, crumpled up and dropped into the water. Ninety men were at work on this section of the structure, and the whistle had just blown at 5.20 for the men to quit work for the day, when there was a grinding sound from the bridge midstream. The men turned to see what had happened and at that instant the cry went up "The bridge is falling."

The men made a rush shoreward, but the distance was too great for them to escape. The fallen section of the bridge dragged others after it, the snapping girders and cables looming like a crash of artillery.

Just Missed Steamboat.

Terror lent fleetness to the feet of the frightened workmen as they sped shoreward, but only a few of them reached safety before the last piece of iron work on the south shore was dragged into the river.

Near the shore the wreckage of the bridge did not go below the surface of the water, and eight workmen who remained above water were rescued and taken to the hospitals at Levis.

The steamer Glenmont had just cleared the bridge when the first section fell. The water thrown up by the debris came clear over the bridge of the steamer. Over the boats piled backward and forward over the smoke stacks, carrying the pilot house backward and forward with them when the vessel righted an hour, but there was no sign of life.

The twisted iron and steel had its victims in a terrible death grip. A few floating timbers and the broken strands of the bridge toward the north shore were the only signs that anything unusual had happened. There was not a ripple on the smooth surface of the St. Lawrence as it swept along toward the Gulf.

Structure Overloaded.

The collapse, thought to be due to the overloading of the superstructure with bridge materials, occurred at an hour when the workmen were all in their places, preliminary to finishing the work for the day.

When the fall of the giant structure came the big steel structural work with which it was being built prevented many of the workmen from drowning in the cold St. Lawrence River. Those who were not stunned by the terrible tumble from the superstructure seized the big steel girders that formed the sides of the river bottom, and were thus saved from drowning.

All the men drowned were employes of the Phoenixville Bridge Company and subcontractors (Lesage and Montreal).

Of the 84 P. M. 16 bodies had been picked up, and of the eight men in the Levis Hospital, two of them were not expected to live throughout the night.

Rear Like Earthquake.

The southern extension of the bridge, which collapsed, was rapidly nearing the zenith of the immense steel arch which was to span the river. At 400 feet from the shore the massive steel structure reached an arch with no support save the piers from the shore and one pier in the river, about 150 feet from the shore, while the outward extremity was 150 feet above the water.

The end of the half arch bent down a trifle, and a moment later the whole enormous fabric began to give way, slowly at first, then with ever-increasing speed, which was plainly heard in Quebec, and which shook the whole countryside so that the residents rushed out of their houses, thinking that an earthquake occurred.

MISSING GIRL'S BODY FOUND IN LAKE

Death of a Pretty Schoolteacher a Mystery.

BELIEF SHE JUMPED INTO LAKE.

Had Been Left in Buggy While Escort Went a Short Distance to Get Valise —Upon His Return to Vehicle She Was Gone—Body Found in Waters of a Lake Used by Campers

Dover, N. J. (Special).—In the clear waters of Lake Hopatcong the body of Miss Agnes Maguire, a pretty young school teacher of No. 26 Second Place, Brooklyn, was found after a search lasting from Saturday night, when she mysteriously disappeared from the side of her lover companion. Charles Maguire, had left her only a few minutes to go into a cottage at Lake Hopatcong to get some change.

The drowning theory is discredited by several, however. It was thought by the coroner's expert swimmer that the water along the shore was scarcely deep enough for a person to drown in.

Burns Money; Kills Himself.

Webster City, Iowa (Special).—In sight of an astonished crowd, Carl Rusch, a farmer, set fire to money in the street of his paper money, threw his jewelry in the sewer, and then committed suicide by carbolic acid, the act of the man who, it is said, would be arrested for the crime of trying to leave the point.

On the other hand, there is a theory that the young woman committed suicide, although this is scouted by her relatives. The girl had been in ill health recently, it is said, but never showed any signs of melancholia.

A circumstance which led to this belief on the part of the coroner and others who saw the body is the absence of the silk shirt which the girl wore. The indication are that she removed this before going into the lake. A careful examination made by the coroner convinced him that the girl must have removed this outside skirt herself. The rest of the clothing was in perfect order, disproving entirely the theory that she had been waylaid by anyone.

Some comfort is attached to the presumption that the young woman can

Shark Bit Off His Leg.

Boston (Special).—A shark bit off one of the legs of John Johnson, a member of the crew of the United States steamer Dolphin, on the trip from the West Indies to Boston, and then fled with the severed limb and nearly 12 feet long, was captured after a terrific struggle and killed upon the ship's deck.

England is preparing for a complete overhauling of her forces in the East.

Thousands Are Starving.

Tokyo (By Cable).— Thousands of peasants are destitute and are starving in consequence of the disastrous floods that have visited the central provinces of Japan during the last few days. The price of rice is higher than ever before, and the famine is wide-spread.

The American delegation to the Peace Conference has drawn up a new proposition with respect to the allotment of judges for the International High Court of Justice.

The News

Domestic.

United States Judge Kohlsaat issued a temporary injunction against 14 Western railroads and five express companies restraining them from making any rates on oranges and butter.

A landslide in Port Nue, a suburb of Pittsburg, caused houses to crack and partly collapse and hundreds of foreign residents to flee in terror.

Mrs. Chadwick, wife of Rear Admiral Chadwick, was decorated as an officer d'academie by the President of France.

Mrs. Byron Hendricks, her granddaughter and the driver of their carriage were killed by a train near Alliance, O.

Edward Phillips, clerk in a New York brokerage office, was arrested on the charge of the larceny of $9,000.

Henry Reiss, suspected of being the last of the famous Chicago carbarn bandits, is under arrest in New York.

The postoffice at Belleport, L. I., was robbed by thieves who used dynamite to gain an entrance.

The Navy Department has ordered 125,000 tons of coal for the battleship going out to the Pacific.

The Cox Building, in Rochester, was gutted by fire to the extent of $150,000 by fire.

Dr. Augustus Coe Van Duyn, a former army surgeon, died in Kansas City.

A windstorm caused $100,000 damage at the Iowa State Fair Grounds.

Mr. George Whitelock, of Baltimore, was elected president of the convention of the American Bar Association after a spirited contest over a resolution attacking President Roosevelt for criticising Judge Humphrey's decision in the Neeley case.

L. H. Carter, a student at the University of Illinois, and a member of Brigadier General W. H. Carter, was killed by falling into a chandelier charged with electricity at the gymnasium.

Dr. George Waldron, of Rochester, and three women were instantly killed in the Lewis Hospital, two of them car struck their automobile east of Canandaigua, N. Y.

Miss Lillian Birchard, who was lost in the snow on top of Mount Rainier all night, was saved by a rescue party led by a Mr. Bernard dog.

Professor and Mrs. Carl Twing, the former of Yale, on their honeymoon trip, have been arrested in Philadelphia for fever.

Grotche Heinkinschloss, once an artist of merit, was found in a Bowery gutter with his skull crushed.

Lord Strathcona says Canada is to rival the United States in population.

Miss Anna A. Hucke was badly bitten and torn by a lion which escaped from its cage at Luna Park, Pittsburg.

Secretary Taft was a passenger aboard a St. Louis and San Francisco train derailed by an open switch.

The American Tobacco Company has closed its plant in Danville.

Judge Alton B. Parker, in addressing the American Bar Association, declared that the time had arrived for us to supervise issues of stocks and bonds.

A man living a hermit's life in Connecticut claims to be the famous Cardiff giant. Barnum's agents crossed Niagara and was supposed to drown.

The Consolidated Stock Exchange of New York has agreed to a new building the site of which cost $870,000.

Louis Higgins, accused of the murder of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Coffee, was lynched by a Kentucky mob.

Foreign.

A formal announcement of the signature of the Anglo-Russian convention, which settles many of the two governments, but the exact terms of the agreement will not be published for the present.

The anti-martial that tried 18 persons on charges of plotting against Emperor Nicholas and the Russian government has found all of the guilty and sentenced them to death.

The Servian government may decide to use the guillotine in executing the murderers of the late king and queen, Alexander and Draga, who were executed with the axe.

The arrest of a German army officer on a charge of high treason it is feared may lead to the court martialing of German officers to betray spirace of German officers to betray military secrets.

United States officers designated to attend the exhibition of cavalry at the German Army as guests of Emperor William arrived in Berlin.

Several members of the Japanese Cabinet announce that they are weary of the premiership of Premier Katsura.

Count White, once the most powerful man in Russia, has accepted the portfolio of minister of the interior.

After an official investigation of the affair at Chemulpo, in which the battleship Iena was destroyed, the French Navy is severely criticised for its lack of discipline, penny-pinching, compelling all tobacco to be bought at the Government stores, showing a large percentage of licorice and other articles.

One Killed And Seven Hurt.

Charleston, Ill. (Special).—One man was killed and seven passengers badly injured in a wreck on the Illinois Central railroad, two miles south of Clover Leaf passenger train No. 4, bound for Memphis, Tenn., ran into a broken rail. The engine and seven coaches jumped a switch and ended up in a ditch.

Two Shot By Robbers.

Corning, N. Y. (Special).—Giuseppe Perilla was murdered and Giuseppe Giofredo was mortally wounded at their home in the village of Addison, this city.

The Italians came to the door and the house and demanded $10 apiece. The men said in reply that they had no money. Without further parley the intruders drew revolvers and commenced firing. Perilla was shot in the mouth and instantly killed.

Trouble On War Ship.

Honolulu (By Cable).—The officers and men of the United States cruiser Chicago, which completed a long cruise to the Philippines, have been in port here for two months, as a result of which there has been almost a mutiny on board and the coaling of the cruiser has been delayed.

Quarantined Against Cuba.

San Jose, Costa. Rica (By Cable).—A quarantine against all vessels coming from Cuba has been declared and is being enforced at all Costa Rican seaports.

BLAMES THE BANK FOR THEFT OF

Runyon Declares She Got Money and Then Betrayed Him.

PACKED $96,000 IN SUIT

Tells How He Robbed the Trust Company For, He Says, Laura M. Carter. When He Got the Streets—Took Suit Case Full Notes to Her Apartment.

New York (Special).—Charles A. Runyan, the former paying teller who stole nearly $100,000 in cash from the Windsor Trust Company on June, told in the Court of General Sessions the story of his downfall. He charged that Laura A. Carter, now on trial, charged with receiving some money which she knew was stolen, was the temptress who led him astray. Runyan testified that he met Mrs. Carter on the street by chance and visited her at her home several times. During these visits he told her that he had stolen a few thousand dollars from the bank where he was employed. One evening, he said, when they were alone, Mrs. Carter said:

"You're in bad now. You must take some more and have enough for yourself."

A few days later he crammed nearly $100,000 into a suitcase and went to Mrs. Carter's apartment, bragging her to aside her wraps and be seated, while she did, taking a large rocking chair opposite the couch upon which he had seated himself. Runyan testified that, to learn a pronounce."

"To remonce what?"

"Remonce."

Mrs. Carter asked him to pronounce it, and he did so.

Mrs. Graham, who had risen to make the tea, took her seat at the piano instead.

"I know why," she concluded, quietly. "It is because you are married." Then: "Let me play you a little something," she said.

She commenced a prelude of Chopin's, full of strange chords and sad sobbings of a storm, a thing he had frequently heard her play. Mrs. Carter friends had left him alone, strung to the pitch of frenzy, in a castle on a hill. As the end of the music found herself absorbed in the ends of her fingers. They were old, those fingers, and wrinkled. A woman shows her age first of all in her hands. Runyan, as he looked at them, was a heavy line under her chin at her throat. It was almost as if it had been cut there with a knife.

The prelude, full of sadness, suggested the end of things, concluded with the look of this Rose of Yesterday.

Apparently, the melody finished, she turned around and rested her eyes on Runyan. They were old eyes and tired. Heavy wrinkles lay under them. Wrinkles that stayed.

"Why," she asked, "once its mate dies, a male ostrich will never take another?"

"Why, Mrs. Graham," queried Beatrice. Then, "Isn't it a pity," she reflected, "that there aren't a few men who are more like ostriches?"

Laughed Mrs. Graham, and I am one of them. I shall never take another husband because I should never be able to live with him, partly because I should never be able to love him, and partly because—

Beatrice looked from her old and tired eyes to her hair, beginning to be sprinkled with silver in front.

"If you had it to do over again, would you marry him?" she asked. "Or let your friends tear you away from him before?"

The question raised a tempest of emotion, apparently. Her friend rose from the piano stool and walked up and down.

"I am not sure," she quavered, "that I would. There is the word of a woman, to begin with. It is an ugly word. It clings to you. I know. It is a word to your husband, and to your friends—Took Suit Case Full but how many know that? Then, a man, he is a man, and does not always keep his promises. Yes, I know all about it. Will you have some tea?"

"No, no," whined Beatrice. "Pray don't make tea for me. I couldn't drink it, really. It would keep me awake, anyway, now."

"Why, now?"

Beatrice shrugged her shoulders.

"Oh, I don't, know," she replied; "nothing."

Mrs. Graham, who had risen to make the tea, took her seat at the piano bench.

"I know why," she concluded, quietly. "It is because you are married." Then: "Let me play you a little something," she said.

She commenced a prelude of Chopin's, full of strange chords and sad sobbings of a storm, a thing he had frequently heard her play. Mrs. Carter friends had left him alone, strung to the pitch of frenzy, in a castle on a hill. As the end of the music found herself absorbed in the ends of her fingers. They were old, those fingers, and wrinkled. A woman shows her age first of all in her hands. Runyan, as he looked at them, was a heavy line under her chin at her throat. It was almost as if it had been cut there with a knife.

The prelude, full of sadness, suggested the end of things, concluded with the look of this Rose of Yesterday.

Apparently, the melody finished, she turned around and rested her eyes on Runyan. They were old eyes and tired. Heavy wrinkles lay under them. Wrinkles that stayed.

"Why," she asked, "once its mate dies, a male ostrich will never take another?"

"Why, Mrs. Graham," queried Beatrice. Then, "Isn't it a pity," she reflected, "that there aren't a few men who are more like ostriches?"

Laughed Mrs. Graham, and I am one of them. I shall never take another husband because I should never be able to live with him, partly because I should never be able to love him, and partly because—

Beatrice looked from her old and tired eyes to her hair, beginning to be sprinkled with silver in front.

"If you had it to do over again, would you marry him?" she asked. "Or let your friends tear you away from him before?"

The question raised a tempest of emotion, apparently. Her friend rose from the piano stool and walked up and down.

"I am not sure," she quavered, "that I would. There is the word of a woman, to begin with. It is an ugly word. It clings to you. I know. It is a word to your husband, and to your friends—